Immigration and visa issues, which have long plagued the information technology sector, could come back to hurt Indian IT services companies this year as the US heads towards presidential election in 2016.

In the US, the biggest market for the Indian IT services sector, 'this will be a very, contentious election and immigration reform is right up there for discussion', said Phill Freshet, founder and chief executive of GfS Research. "the displacement of USIT and back – office jobs will be a significant issue leading up to 2016.' India's $146-billion IT outsourcing Industry has been a beneficiary of the temporary US work visas that are required by skilled foreign workers to work in that county. The employees working at client locations in the US are issued H-1B visas, which have cap of 65,000 a year.

The US Congress in recent months has been considering bills that seek to triple the cap of H-1B visas to 1,95,000. There is, however, a growing discontent about the H-1B visa process among skilled workers in the US, who say the visas are a way for big companied to hire cheaper foreign workers.

Recent examples, they cite, include electricity company Southern California Edison and entertainment company Disney, where local employee were laid off and replaced by H-1B visa holders . the layoffs have prompted some US Senators to call for investigations into the visa process used by the companies.

"US workers who have trained a temporary visa-holding replacement as condition of their severance describe it as a profoundly humiliating experience. After a day's hard work, we wash our hands, face and feet and become refreshed with water, within a minute or two. In most cultures, people offer a pot full of water to guests visiting their homes.

(2) Warm water followed by cold water application is very useful. Application of steam produces sweating and helps in detoxification. In swelling of any part of body, obesity and jin aches, (application of steam followed by a wash with cold water is, therefore, very helpful.) One important use of water is to strengthen the legs or hands or any part of the body which has become weak due to any reason or disease. This feat is achieved by using cold water only. For example, if the legs are weak , water is poured on the legs from the upper part of the knees to the feet from all sided of the legs and without drying the water, the legs are covered by a bed-sheet and woolen blanket for half an hour to warm the legs. After washing the legs, one can warm the legs by exercise or walking for half an hour. This application strengthens the legs within 10 to 15 days. For warming the body, lie on a bed well covered by a blanket.

If we are more ware, we can increase the benefit of walking on wet grass in the morning. After walking for 10 to 20 minutes, one should immediately wear a pair of dry thick socks (preferably cotton) so that the benefit of walking is increased to a greater extent. If this is not available, one may walk on the road for five to 10 minutes immediately after walking on the grass. In an injury, cold water application is really very effective for getting relief.
